

Personal pronouns

I	watashi	Used by both males and females.
You	anata	Basic form of the second personal pronoun. Used toward someone unfamiliar. Spoken by women toward their boyfriend or husband.
He	kare	Basic form of the pronoun meaning "he." However this pronoun is rarely spoken in speech. Last name+san or First name+san are commonly used in speech. For example, ikeda san, hanako san, ian san, miren san etc...
She	kanojo	Basic form of the pronoun meaning "she." Like kare above, Last name+san or First name+san are commonly used in speech.
It	sore	Basic form of the pronoun meaning "it."

Subjective, possessive, objective form

Japanese pronouns have just one form for each. To make a subjective, possessive, or objective form, particles are used

Subjective	watashi wa watashi ga	anata wa anata ga	kare wa kare ga	kanojo wa kanojo ga	sore wa sore ga
	I	you	he	she	it
Possessive	watashi no	anata no	kare no	kanojo no	sore no
	my	your	his	her	its
Objective	watashi ni watashi o	anata ni anata o	kare ni kare o	kanojo ni kanojo o	sore ni sore o
	me	you	him	her	it